endeavor. Selling credit spreads provides income for life.

Traditionally, buyers of options lose monumental amounts of money. It is insane.

The money do not disappear. Simply change hands... yes, to the people that sold those options.

Credit Spread Basics .

A credit spread is a simple strategy that allows options traders to have time decay

work in their favor

while maintaining a favorable risk-reward outlook. To initiate a bullish credit spread,

an investor would simultaneously write a

put option and buy a

put option that expire

at the same time, but
